Part 1—Introduction

Purpose of Legislation Approval Process

2 The purpose of the Legislation Approval Process (LAP) is to ensure that draft legislation has received all necessary government clearances before it is introduced into Parliament. All draft legislation must be cleared for introduction by a Parliamentary Secretary or junior Minister designated by the Prime Minister for the purpose (the designated approver). This clearance is given on advice from the Legislation Secretariat in the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet (PM&C).

3 OPC's unique role in the process is to provide independent advice that the legislation is covered by appropriate policy authority. The OPC drafter is the only independent player in the approval process who knows enough about the legislation to be able to test it against the policy authority within the usual deadlines. This is not to suggest that other players (eg policy officers in PM&C) could not acquire the necessary understanding of legislation, only that they may not be able to do it properly in the brief period between when the legislation is lodged with PM&C and when it is lodged with the designated approver (often less than 2 working days).

4 Further information about the significance of the Legislation Approval Process, and OPC's role in it, can be found in paragraphs 7-25 of Working with the Office of Parliamentary Counsel: A guide for clients.

5 In general, the Legislation Approval Process applies to parliamentary amendments (and requests for amendments) in the same way as it applies to Bills. See Part 4 of this Drafting Direction for special procedures for dealing with urgent Bills and parliamentary amendments.

6 Bills and parliamentary amendments are referred to collectively in this Drafting Direction as draft legislation.

Policy approval for exposure drafts

General

7 Paragraph 7.9 of the Legislation Handbook provides that a draft Bill should not be made public before it is introduced into Parliament unless disclosure has been authorised by the Cabinet or the Prime Minister.

8 Sometimes copies of Bills need to be provided to state and territory ministers or officials, particularly where complementary legislation has to be prepared. Paragraph 7.10 of the Legislation Handbook requires the Prime Minister's approval to be obtained before the copies are made available.

9 It is likely that PM&C will require a draft Bill to have policy approval before being exposed. There is no formal process equivalent to LAP for clearing Bills for exposure, but sometimes PM&C may ask drafters for informal advice about the policy authority for a proposed exposure draft.

Referral to federal courts

10 If a draft Bill proposes to confer jurisdiction on, or alter the procedures of or otherwise affect, a federal court or tribunal, you should discuss with your instructors and the Civil Justice Division in the Attorney-General's Department whether the Bill should be sent to the court or tribunal on a confidential basis for comment. The Attorney-General's approval must be obtained for a Bill within his or her portfolio responsibilities. The instructing Department's approval must be obtained for a Bill that is the responsibility of another Minister. The Civil Justice Division will arrange the consultation with the court or tribunal.

Part 2—Legislation Approval meetings

11 Legislation Approval for draft legislation to be introduced is usually given early in the week proposed for introduction. Legislation Approval meetings with the designated approver usually take place early on the first sitting day of each sitting week. Papers that are not available for that meeting may be considered by the designated approver later in the week, without a formal meeting; this is relatively common, but cannot be guaranteed.

12 In general, draft legislation and memorandums from OPC that are ready for Legislation Approval should be lodged with the Legislation Section in PM&C by 11 am on the Wednesday before the week proposed for introduction. This is arranged by the Bills Officer in OPC. To ensure this deadline is met, you must give a copy of the draft legislation and a copy of the LAP memo to the Bills Officer before 5 pm on the Tuesday before the week proposed for introduction.

13 Legislation Circular No. 1 of 2002 provides that where papers are not received by the 11 am Wednesday deadline, the draft legislation will not proceed in the following sitting week, but will be held over to a later week unless there are exceptional circumstances. The deadline may be waived only if the relevant Minister writes to the designated approver describing the legislation, providing a satisfactory explanation for the delay and convincing reasons why the legislation should not be held over. The letter should be received by the 11.00am Wednesday deadline. If there is any risk that draft legislation will miss that deadline, you should advise your instructors of this procedure and encourage your instructors to discuss the situation with staff of the PM&C Legislation Section.

14 You should ensure that the OPC Bills Officer is aware of draft legislation that is likely to be available for the next LAP meeting.

15 After a Bill has gone through LAP, First Parliamentary Counsel (FPC) arranges for the legislation submission to be sent to the relevant drafting team for filing. You should not send the submission outside OPC (for example, you should not send it to your instructors).

Part 3—Legislation Approval Process memorandums (LAP memos)

LAP memos to be cleared by statutory officer in OPC

16 Before a LAP memo is lodged with PM&C, it should be cleared by FPC or, if FPC is not available, by one of the Second Parliamentary Counsel.

OPC not obliged to “clear” LAP memos with instructors

17 The LAP memo represents OPC’s independent advice to the Government, and OPC is not under any obligation to clear any aspect of the memo with any instructor.

18 OPC may show draft LAP memos to instructors in the interests of good government. If we have a problem with authority, it is more sensible to give people a chance to resolve it before the draft legislation goes to PM&C for clearance. In other cases, we may show the memo to instructors so that, if need be, they can brief their Minister.

Basic format for LAP memos

19 LAP memos should be set out as described in Attachment A. Word Note 48 contains instructions for how to use the LAP memo macro to create a LAP memo.

Authority

General principles

20 The LAP memo must identify the policy authority for the draft legislation. Depending on the contents of the legislation, the authority may be any of the following, or any combination of the following:

- a Cabinet Minute;
- the Prime Minister’s approval (or the approval of the designated approver on the Prime Minister’s behalf);
- the relevant Minister’s approval;
- FPC’s approval (see paragraphs 41 and 42).

21 Not all decisions of standing committees of the Cabinet or of ad hoc committees of the Cabinet provide policy authority for draft legislation. If a Cabinet Minute requires endorsement from the Cabinet, it cannot be relied upon to provide policy authority. It will be marked “THIS MINUTE REQUIRES CABINET ENDORSEMENT”. You should not assume that such endorsement will automatically be given. The LAP memo should refer to the final Cabinet Minute (which will have “/CAB” in the Minute number).

22 In some cases, specific agreement from other Ministers is also required (see paragraphs 34 to 40).

23 Chapter 4 of the Legislation Handbook and paragraphs 7-25 of Working with the Office of Parliamentary Counsel: A guide for clients set out more information about the authority required for different kinds of policy in different circumstances.

24 In the case of urgent parliamentary amendments, you may have trouble discovering any apparently adequate authority for the amendments. In such cases, you should simply detail whatever information you have about the source of the amendments. However, consideration of the policy authority for non-urgent parliamentary amendments should involve the same rigour as is required for Bills.

References to authority documents in the LAP memo

25 If you have seen a copy of the document in which policy authority is recorded or requested (eg a Cabinet Minute, a Prime Minister's letter or a Minister's letter), your statements about that authority may be unqualified. If you have not seen the document but have been told about its existence and its contents, your statements should be qualified by "I understand that" or "I am instructed that". If the document is a Cabinet Minute, it would generally be desirable to specify as well that you have not seen the document. Attachment A sets out the form of words to use if you need to refer to a Cabinet Minute of which you have seen only extracts.

26 If the Minister has not yet requested some necessary authority, the LAP memo must either:

- identify the topics that need to be covered by the request for authority; or
- attach a copy of a draft letter that is awaiting the Minister's signature.

27 There should be an express statement in every LAP memo to the effect that the draft legislation is fully authorised, or will be if specified events occur (but see paragraphs 29 and 30).

28 Where the legislation is not yet fully authorised (including by other relevant Ministers), the express statement should identify, by reference to preceding paragraphs of the LAP memo, all of the events needed to complete the authorisation (eg "The Bill will have appropriate policy authority if the Prime Minister gives the authority requested by the Minister as mentioned in paragraph 2, and gives authority along the lines requested in the draft letter mentioned in paragraph 3, and the Minister for Home Affairs approves the offences mentioned in paragraph 4, and the Minister for [specify Minister] gives the approval mentioned in paragraph 5"). The express statement should be the last paragraph in the authority section of the LAP memo. Keep in mind that the purpose of this statement is to provide a checklist of outstanding authority for PM&C to tick off before the legislation is cleared for introduction.

Unresolved disputes about authority

29 Paragraph 27 is not intended to change our practice in the rare cases in which a drafter is still in dispute with clients about the required policy authority when the LAP memo needs to be lodged. In particular, it is not intended to indicate that a LAP memo may not be lodged until all authority issues are resolved to everyone's satisfaction.

30 In such cases, the LAP memo will need to include:

- a qualified statement about authority; and
- a description of the disputed aspects of the draft legislation; and
- an explanation of why you consider that those aspects require more policy authority than the Minister proposes to seek; and
- an indication of the level of policy authority that you think would be adequate for those aspects of the draft legislation.

These provisions should, of course, be brought to the attention of the instructors.

31 It is important to remember that OPC has no capacity to insist that any particular policy approval be obtained. Our role is simply to identify any matter we think has inadequate policy authority. Once we have done so, a policy agency may:

- seek further policy authority; or
- seek to persuade the appropriate staff members of PM&C that the existing policy authority is adequate.

Citing authority for amounts of money in draft legislation

32 If amounts of money to be specified in draft legislation are not included in the relevant Cabinet Minute or other authority, you should ask the instructing agency for information about the source of the amounts. This might be the Budget Papers or other Cabinet papers that were not specifically about the draft legislation.

33 You should deal with the information as follows:

- So far as possible, check the information to see whether it adequately substantiates the figures included in the draft legislation.
- However, if the information takes the form of method statements about how to derive the figures from other data, you do not need to “crunch the numbers” yourself. Some drafters have received information from instructing agencies that is unintelligible except to specialists.
- Make sure the information is cited in the LAP memo (this citation may need to be along the lines of “I am instructed by the Department of XYZ that this Bill gives effect to paragraph x(y) of Cabinet Minute No. KR08/XXX.”).
- If you have been unable to check or interpret the information yourself, arrange for a draft of the LAP memo (together with a copy of the information supplied by instructors) to be sent to PM&C early enough for the specialists there to check that it supports the figures in the draft legislation.

Offence, civil penalty and law enforcement provisions must be approved by Minister for Home Affairs if they are significant, sensitive or contentious

34 Offence, civil penalty and law enforcement provisions must be approved by the Minister for Home Affairs if the provisions are significant, sensitive or contentious. Similarly, amendments of such provisions must be approved by that Minister if the amendments are significant, sensitive or contentious.

35 The Criminal Law Branch in the Attorney-General’s Department will advise on whether provisions or amendments come within this requirement for approval. As a general rule, anything that is within the scope of the Guide to Framing Commonwealth Offences, Civil Penalties and Enforcement Powers is an “offence, civil penalty or law enforcement” provision. If such a provision, or an amendment of such a provision, is contrary to the principles set out in the Guide, the provision or amendment will be regarded as “significant, sensitive or contentious”. However, provisions or amendments may also be regarded as “significant, sensitive or contentious” even if they are consistent with the principles of the Guide (for example, a new search and seizure regime will probably need approval, even if it is drafted in accordance with the Guide).

36 The Criminal Law Branch can give your instructors advice about how to obtain any necessary approval from the Minister for Home Affairs.

37 The question whether a Cabinet Minute or a letter from the Prime Minister provides adequate policy authority for offence, civil penalty and law enforcement provisions should be approached in the same way as drafters generally approach the adequacy of policy authority.

State and Territory agreement to vary the GST base

38 Under intergovernmental agreements, the States and Territories have a role in approving variations of the GST base. The agreement of State and Territory Ministers should also be covered in the part of the LAP memo dealing with authority. PM&C intend that this requirement will be set out in each letter giving the Prime Minister’s policy authority, but it may sometimes be overlooked. Also, it is not clear whether this requirement will always be set out in relevant Cabinet Minutes. If you are unsure whether this requirement is relevant to draft legislation you are working on, you should discuss it with staff of the PM&C Legislation Section.

Agreement of Presiding Officers to amendments of the Parliamentary Service Act 1999

39 If draft legislation amends the Parliamentary Service Act 1999, the Presiding Officers (the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives) must agree to the amendments. In such cases, the agreement of the Presiding Officers needs to be dealt with in addressing whether the draft legislation has adequate policy authority. This will involve specifying that the agreement has been obtained (including references to dated letters etc), specifying that the drafter understands that the agreement has been obtained (including references to dated letters etc, if applicable) or noting that it is yet to be obtained.

Authority from other Ministers

40 There will be some other cases in which Cabinet authority is given subject to details being agreed between specified Ministers, or in which Prime Minister’s authority is given subject to the agreement of specified Ministers. In such cases the agreement of the Minister concerned needs to be dealt with in addressing whether the draft legislation has adequate policy authority. This will involve specifying that the agreement has been obtained (including references to dated letters etc), specifying that the drafter understands that the agreement has been obtained (including references to dated letters etc, if applicable) or noting that it is yet to be obtained.

FPC’s power to authorise statute law revision-type changes

41 In June 1996, the Parliamentary Business Committee gave FPC power to authorise technical corrections, of the kind that would otherwise be suitable for inclusion in a Statute Law Revision Bill, for inclusion in appropriate Bills in the government’s ordinary legislation program. This has been interpreted as applying also to parliamentary amendments to make technical corrections to Bills (to the extent that such amendments cannot be made as Chairman's amendments). FPC is also able to authorise the repeal of legislation that is clearly spent.

42 FPC can therefore give "policy" authority for amendments to make such corrections or repeals. This means that instructing agencies do not need to approach their Ministers, and their Ministers do not need to approach the Prime Minister, for authority to include these amendments in draft legislation. However, any such amendments must still be included in the text of the draft legislation that the Minister ultimately approves.

Ministerial approval of text

43 The standard approach where draft legislation amends Acts administered by different Ministers is to refer to:

- the approval of the sponsoring Minister in relation to the text of the whole of the draft legislation; and
- the approval of other Ministers only in relation to that part of the text that amends their Acts.

44 OPC and PM&C have agreed that it is inappropriate for the LAP memo to indicate that the sponsoring Minister has approved only the text of that Minister's parts of the draft legislation, rather than the text of the whole of the draft legislation. The sponsoring Minister should have to approve the text of the whole of the draft legislation, not only the parts covering Acts administered by the sponsoring Minister.

45 If draft legislation sponsored by a Minister in one capacity amends an Act that is administered by the Minister in another capacity (eg an education Bill that also amends a workplace relations Act), the Minister need not separately approve the text of the amendments of the other Act. The approval by the Minister of the text of the whole of the draft legislation is sufficient.

Numbering

46 If your Bill has markers in it (^, @, # etc.), leave these in until preparing the Bill to send to CanPrint and include the following text in the LAP memo:

Numbering of the Bill will be finalised, and renumbering markers removed, before the Bill is introduced.

Optional paragraphs in LAP memo

47 In general, we should not feel inhibited about including constructive comments or explanations in LAP memos. On the other hand, LAP memos should not be unnecessarily long. Usually it would be desirable to aim for a memo no longer than one page, although clearly in some cases even the citation of all relevant authorities will run onto a second or third page.

Explanation

48 This paragraph will not generally be required where the relevant authority is clear. In some cases, however, it is helpful to provide a brief explanation of the provisions. This is especially relevant to parliamentary amendments, where it may be appropriate to provide an explanation of why the amendments are required at all.

Departures from authority

49 Any departures should be identified, and the inclusion of provisions which depart from authority should be explained, generally using the form of words “On instructions from the Department of ...”.

50 In this context, “departures from authority” refers to provisions for which there is no authority and, apparently, no intention to seek authority. It does not cover, for instance, departures from Cabinet authority that have been approved by the Prime Minister or the designated approver or for which such approval has been, or will be, sought. These would be dealt with under “Authority”.

51 Departures that need to be mentioned under this heading are very rare these days.

Comments

52 Any other matters that you feel should be raised may be raised under this heading, for instance:

- You may mention any case in which instructors reject a “plain English” approach to drafting without good reason.
- You may refer to provisions that you think might cause difficulties in the Parliament.
- You may want to note that AGS has advised that there is a risk that particular aspects of the legislation may not be constitutional.

53 Sometimes it may be appropriate to mention in the LAP memo that some elements covered by the relevant authorities have not been included in the draft. In some circumstances, for example, picking and choosing within the coverage of an authority might raise more issues than doing something completely outside the authority. A package of measures may have been carefully designed to achieve a particular balancing of interests. Material of this kind should be raised under the “Comments” heading and not under the “Authority” heading.

Headings for optional paragraphs

54 The “optional” paragraphs may be given more informative headings if this seems appropriate (for example, “Explanation—effect of granting tax rebate” or “Comments— inclusion of examples in Bill”).

Other matters

References to the Cabinet

55 The Cabinet should be referred to as the Cabinet and not simply as Cabinet (but note that “Cabinet Minute” is acceptable).

References to Ministers

56 Ministers should be identified by title (eg the Minister for Education or the Treasurer) rather than by name (eg Minister Gillard).

57 If a particular Minister has a number of titles, the title that is relevant for the particular Bill should be used in the LAP memo (eg if it is an education Bill, you should refer to the Minister for Education).

References to Parliamentary Secretaries

58 In LAP memos, if there is a Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet, he or she may be referred to as the PSC, and if there is a Parliamentary Secretary to the Prime Minister, he or she may be referred to as the PSPM. This is to avoid such expressions as “a letter from the Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet to the Minister for Health and Ageing”.

Reintroduction of lapsed Bills after an election

59 The LAP requirements for lapsed Bills to be reintroduced after an election will depend on whether the election has produced a change of government. Specific advice about these requirements will be provided after each election.

Part 4—Special procedures for re-introduction of Bills in same session of Parliament or for relocated measures

60 This Part deals with procedures that are available if material to be included in a Bill or in parliamentary amendments has already cleared the legislation approval process for a different Bill. This situation may occur if:

- (a) a Bill is to be reintroduced; or
- (b) material is to be relocated from one Bill to another; or
- (c) material is to be removed from one Bill, but instead moved as parliamentary amendments to another Bill.

61 In this situation, you should consider whether there have been any changes to the policy of the Bill since the Bill’s first introduction. This will determine whether further policy authority is required. If the authority relied upon for the original introduction is being relied on and there is not something different (or additional) in the reintroduction/relocation, you should discuss the appropriate form of words for the LAP memo with FPC (see Part 4 of the table in attachment A).

62 You should discuss the matter with FPC if there is any doubt that the Prime Minister (or PM&C) is aware of the reintroduction or relocation.

63 This does not affect the general approach set out in paragraph 20 of the Working with the Office of Parliamentary Counsel: A Guide for Clients that once a Bill is introduced in reliance on particular authority, that authority will generally be treated as spent.

Part 5—Special procedures for urgent Bills and parliamentary amendments

64 This Part deals with procedures that are available if draft legislation is required urgently (eg within hours rather than days). Before using those procedures, you should first discuss with staff of the PM&C Legislation Section how they would like the particular urgent matter to be handled. In some cases PM&C prefers to accept late documents and put them through a brief Legislation Approval Process, and in other cases they prefer us to go directly to the designated approver.

65 In an appropriate case, LAP approval can be sought directly from the designated approver by letter faxed to his or her office. The letter is usually signed by FPC, but another drafter may sign the letter if FPC is unavailable.

66 The letter should include a short paragraph:

- (a) describing the Bill or the amendments; and
- (b) briefly explaining the effect of the Bill or the amendments.

67 Sometimes, a Bill will need to be introduced, or an amendment will need to be moved, before the designated approver has time to approve it. However, an appropriate letter should still be sent to the designated approver and copied to PM&C as soon as the Bill or amendments have been cleared by the instructors.

68 Attachment B sets out a basic precedent for letters to the designated approver requesting urgent LAP approval. See Word Note 48 for instructions about how to use the LAP memo macro to create a letter to the designated approver.

Part 6—Approval of changes made to draft legislation after LAP

69 FPC has authority to approve certain minor changes made to draft legislation after it has been submitted for LAP. Attachment C sets out the kinds of changes that may be approved.

70 If you need to get minor changes to draft legislation approved in this way, you should give FPC a copy of the relevant pages of the draft legislation that:

- shows the changes (either by revision-marking or by handwritten notation); and
- requests approval (this request can be handwritten on the first page).

71 If FPC approves the proposed changes under this procedure, the approval will be recorded on your note. Your note will then be put away on file 90/138, and you will receive a copy of the approval. FPC will let you know if your proposed changes are not suitable for approval under this procedure.

Attachment A—Format and contents of LAP memos

This Attachment sets out forms of words to cover all the usual possibilities for the “Authority” and “Ministerial approval” paragraphs of the LAP memo, and headings for the optional paragraphs in the memo. The LAP memo macro also includes methods of setting out some versions of this material in tables.

Authority

This paragraph sets out the authority for the policy effected by the draft legislation.

The forms of words in the following table are set out using the following conventions:

- Where words are shown in square brackets and roman font, you need to decide whether the words need to be included at all in the particular case (eg “I understand that” is necessary where you haven’t seen the document you are referring to), or which version of the words needs to be included (eg depending whether your draft legislation is a Bill or amendments).
- Where words are shown in square brackets and italics, they are an instruction to the drafter to provide information (eg the title of a Minister).
- Asterisks are used to indicate where the information to be inserted is a number or date, and this is clear from the surrounding text (eg “dated *” requires you to insert the date of the document referred to).

Part 2—Combination cases
14. Draft legislation completely covered by appropriate authority	[Specify all sources of authority] provide appropriate policy authority for the [Bill/amendments]. OR The following provide appropriate policy authority for the [Bill/amendments]. [List all sources of authority].	If the draft legislation is covered by a number of different authorities, you may, if convenient, show the authorities and the parts of the draft legislation to which they relate using a table.

15. Some authority outstanding	Subject to paragraphs , [specify all sources of authority] provide appropriate policy authority for the [Bill/amendments]. [Identify all matters for which authority is outstanding.] The [Bill/amendments] will have appropriate policy authority if: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • [the authority requested in the [specify date] letter is given]; and • [authority is given as requested in the attached draft letter]; and • [authority is given for the [provisions/aspects] mentioned in paragraph *]. 	Use the forms provided in Part 1 of this table to set out the authority obtained and the outstanding authority. If the draft legislation is covered by a number of different authorities, you may, if convenient, show the authorities and the parts of the draft legislation to which they relate using a table. Matters may be identified by reference to provisions, by reference to subject matter, or by reference to a letter in which the matters are described. Keep in mind that this paragraph should provide a checklist for PM&C to work through before putting the draft legislation to the designated approver.
Part 3—Extracts of Cabinet Minute
16. If the Cabinet Minute is the sole source of authority	1 Subject to paragraphs 2 and 3, Cabinet Minute No. * dated * provides appropriate policy authority for the [Bill/amendments]. 2 I have not seen the entire Cabinet Minute. Instead, I have seen extracts consisting of [describe the extracts you have seen]. 3 If the extracts of the Cabinet Minute faithfully reflect the contents of the Cabinet Minute and the Cabinet Minute contains nothing inconsistent with the extracts then the Cabinet Minute provides appropriate policy authority for the [Bill/amendments].	You should adapt the text appropriately for use in a LAP memo that contains a table setting out authority.

17. If the Cabinet Minute is not the sole source of authority	1 Subject to paragraphs 2 to 5, Cabinet Minute No. * dated * provides appropriate policy authority for the [Bill/amendments]. 2 I have not seen the entire Cabinet Minute. Instead, I have seen extracts consisting of [describe the extracts you have seen]. 3 ... 4 ... 5 The [Bill/amendments] will have appropriate policy authority if: (a) the extracts of the Cabinet Minute faithfully reflect the contents of the Cabinet Minute and the Cabinet Minute contains nothing inconsistent with the extracts; and (b) [describe other condition, e.g. authority is given as requested in the attached draft letter]; and (c) [describe other condition, e.g. the amount of the appropriation referred to in paragraph 4 is in accordance with that authority].	You should adapt the text appropriately for use in a LAP memo that contains a table setting out authority.
Part 4—Relocated measures
18. If the measures have been included in a Bill that has already cleared LAP		You should discuss the appropriate wording with FPC.

Ministerial approval

This paragraph sets out the information you have about whether the Minister has approved the text of the draft legislation (as distinct from the policy).

In almost all cases your knowledge about Ministerial approval will come from your instructors and should be prefaced by “I understand that”.

Circumstance	Form of words
1. Minister has approved text of the draft legislation	[I understand that] the [specify sponsoring Minister] has approved the text of the [Bill/amendments].
2. Minister has been asked to approve	[I understand that] the [specify sponsoring Minister] has been asked

the text of the draft legislation	to approve the text of the [Bill/amendments].
3. Minister will be asked to approve the text of the draft legislation	[I understand that] the [specify sponsoring Minister] will be asked to approve the text of the [Bill/amendments].
4. Act(s) administered by another Minister or other Ministers are also amended by the draft legislation	[I understand that] the [specify other Minister] [has approved/has been asked to approve/will be asked to approve] the text of [specify relevant part of draft legislation], which amends the [specify Act or Acts administered by the other Minister].

Attachment C—Changes that may be approved by FPC after LAP

Formal changes

- Corrections of clerical errors: eg incorrect spellings, typographical errors.
- Corrections of grammatical errors.
- Correction of cross-references: eg. a reference to “section 35” might be changed to “section 43”.
- A clause may say “Australia and the external Territories”, overlooking the fact that the Bill defines “Australia” as including the external Territories.
- A clause may refer to “a State or Territory” when the policy of the Bill is to apply only to the States.
- A clause may refer to a tax year or grant year by the wrong date.
- A clause may refer to the “Commission”, when the rest of the Bill refers to “Authority” (due to a change of name during the course of the drafting).
- A clause may have words missing, or wrongly repeat words.

(There are very many different kinds of error—these are only a few examples. What they have in common is that they should be corrected to give effect to the agreed policy of the Bill.)

Stylistic changes

Changes of grammar or style that do not change the sense, eg:

- “in accordance with the provisions of this Act” would be changed to “under this Act”.
- “a person is a person to whom this section applies if...” would be changed to “this section applies to a person if...”.
- “shall be deemed to be” would be changed to “is taken to be”.
- “a person shall” would be changed to “a person must”.
- “There is hereby established a commission...” would be changed to “A commission is established...”.

(There are very many different ways in which the style may be changed—these are only a few examples. What they have in common is that they improve the text without changing the sense.)

Technical changes

Changes that are not simply formal but are necessary to make the draft legislation work, without changing the agreed policy (eg inserting a provision to avoid a constitutional problem).
